One scene involves a car park.

the "Dessert" was one of the best strip tease clubs he visited. He knew it from work. (The stint, mid-life crisis in banking, again.)

He had a cuisine store visit card.

The 'milk chocolate pacifist' [redacted] was again on radio talking [redacted] about Women's tennis, drive bys black renovation and black-owned banks...

I The desert of the real is a bunch,
I The desert of the real is a bunch of rice cookers and cleaners.
) The desert of the real is an electronics store.
I No, the desert of the real is literally rice cookers and cleaners... It's a capitalist metaphore.
I I What do you mean?
I It's workers against employers, owners. It has nothing to do with robots. Or only superficialy.
I The famous 4x work hypothesis?
I From the BFI collection.
I Exactly.

[work talk]

For years he had been working on an Open Luxury milk chocolate in the style of Lindt Vollmilch and Lindt Mandel.
